Dear Friends,

As we look back at 2010 we continue to be grateful for the incredible support this community has bestowed on Project Harmony and the children it serves. You have made a difference in the lives of more than 2300 child abuse victims in just the last year. Once again, more than half of these children were under the age of six and sexual abuse continues to be the most frequent type of abuse evaluated. But the stories are beyond statistics. Each child and his/her family have a very unique story, filled with pain, hope and now healing and with your help, they continue to receive only the best from the Project Harmony staff and the collective partners responding to child abuse.

This year marked a historic event in the purchase and move to a new facility. After 15 years the agency simply outgrew the building off of F Street and with the help of many, purchased an incredible, expanded facility on 119th and Q. It is a beautiful building, now housing more than 150 professionals fighting to end child abuse.

The expanded facility, enhanced services and informed and educated professionals will equip all of us to improve our response to child abuse. Thank you for your continued support and trust in Project Harmony.

Sincerely,

Gene Klein
Executive Director

Helping Children Heal in the Metro

Annual Reports commonly deal in numbers – how many served, how much raised, how many volunteer hours donated. These are important measures of how an organization has served its community in any given year. And this report includes those measures.

In the final analysis, the numbers all become one: helping one child, one place, one time - many times over.

Here are some of their stories...

A family of four trusted their 13-year-old neighbor boy to babysit their eight-year-old daughter and five-year-old son. The family learned that instead of caring for their children, this young man was sexually assaulting their daughter, in front of their son.

The distraught family came to Project Harmony where they found professional investigative and medical services as well as assistance in finding treatment to help them heal. After counseling for the whole family, the children's mother said, "In the interview room ... I was a shattered mommy. I finally feel like me again."

- ★ Project Harmony evaluated more than 2,300 children suspected of having been victims of child abuse in 2010
- ★ 57 percent of those were evaluated for child sexual abuse
- ★ More than half were under the age of six

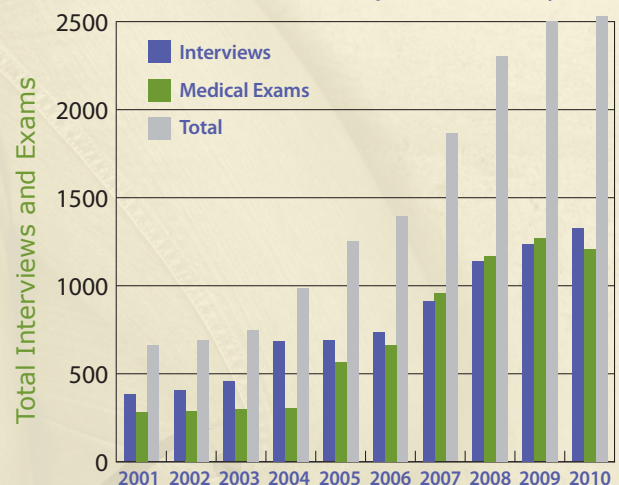

Two children suffered abuse at the hands of their own father for seven years. They tried repeatedly to tell someone about it, but they'd recant each time out of fear. The specially trained interviewers at Project Harmony finally gained the children's trust so they could talk about the horrific details of their abuse.

Project Harmony then worked closely with Child Protective Services and law enforcement to ensure the children's safety. The interviews were corroborated, sparing the children the trauma of testifying against their father. The children and their mother are in therapy, and their father was recently sentenced.

Project Harmony offers services that lead to healing for victims. These services include:

- ★ Forensic interviews – When requested by law enforcement or Child Protective Services, a child interview specialist conducts a recorded forensic interview with the child. This reduces the number of times the child must tell their story.
- ★ Medical examinations – The role of our medical and nursing staff is to provide physical and sexual abuse assessments and comprehensive physical exams for alleged victims.

Forensic Interviews and Medical Exams Conducted at Project Harmony

- ★ Referrals and advocacy – Once each child's needs are assessed, he/she and the non-offending family is referred to the appropriate therapy, support groups and other resources. Nearly 3700 advocacy service contacts were provided to victims in 2010.
- ★ Case staffings – Consisting of representatives from law enforcement, Child Protective Services, the medical, legal and educational communities, Project Harmony staff and other professionals, multidisciplinary Investigative and Treatment teams in Douglas, Sarpy and Pottawattamie counties regularly review individual cases to assure that children do not “fall through the cracks.”
- ★ Training – Project Harmony continually promotes training and education opportunities to child abuse and neglect professionals throughout the Omaha-Council Bluffs metro, 16 southwest Iowa counties and the state of Nebraska. In 2010, a total of 4600 professionals were trained through such venues as “Brown Bag” sessions, video conferences, webinars, on-site training and sponsored training sessions offered in conjunction with the annual Speaking of Children event.

A five-year-old girl and her three-year-old brother watched as their dad beat up their mom. The little girl had a hard time talking about the abuse, but once she did, she told about how her daddy kicked and punched her mommy. The toddler boy couldn't verbalize what happened. Instead, he acted out.

The father was arrested. Meanwhile, Project Harmony referred the woman to a shelter, helped her get a protection order, referred her to counseling for domestic violence, found an education and support group for her, and got her children into play therapy and a support group. The family continues to heal together.

Project Harmony addresses the problems that abused children face every day, and that they would continue to suffer without the proper intervention. These include:

- ★ Fears and phobias
- ★ Anxiety, victimization and low self-esteem
- ★ Physical injuries and sexually transmitted diseases
- ★ Suicidal tendencies

A woman's live-in boyfriend came home drunk one Friday night. He then had sex with the woman's 10-year-old daughter, who told her mother about it. They went to the hospital right away for an examination. The hospital called the Emergency After-Hours Phone for Project Harmony, which conducts sexual assault exams on children under the age of 13.

Medical staff, an advocate and forensic interviewer met law enforcement and Child Protective Services to proceed with the investigation. The distraught mother and child are now receiving the help and support they need in this trying time.

Child abuse isn't an 8:00 to 5:00 problem. Project Harmony is ready to help the children who need us, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

2010 Events and Highlights

March 3, 2010 ★ Speaking of Children

Keynote Luncheon Speaker: Marilyn Van Derbur

Honorary Co-Chairs: Amy and Joe Moglia

Event Chairs: Joani Mullin and Shelley Seimers

Marilyn Van Derbur's keynote luncheon speech to the audience of 1200 at Project Harmony's 3rd Annual Speaking of Children was stunning. The former Miss America and national spokesperson for AT&T told of her "night child" sexual abuse by her father from ages five to eighteen and of her adult life plagued with the unrelenting torture of subliminal memory. Healing could not occur "until the night child had been fully heard, honored and integrated." Van Derbur's passionate message of the need for openness, the hard work of resolution and the gift of hope brought insight to all.
