

Every child has the potential to thrive.

Project Harmony's Connections program brings therapists, schools, students and parents together to provide accessible, preventative mental health care to Omaha-area children.

Early-Intervention Care

As a mental health resource, schools can turn to Project Harmony's Connections program for their kindergarten through eighth grade students needing early-intervention attention. Connections also helps school professionals recognize early warning signs and refer children in need of services.

Professional Services

Once a child is identified, Connections matches each student to the most qualified therapist based on the student's clinical need.

School Support

The program coordinates the appointments, collaborates with providers and supports ongoing engagement efforts with families. Appointments are made at a convenient time and location for all, in an individual or group setting, with a highly qualified, trained provider using evidence-based practices.

Most insurances are accepted, and financial assistance may be available.
