Ways to join us in protecting and advocating for children

LETTER FROM OUR CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER: GENE KLEIN

Dear Friends,

Each year at Project Harmony, I am reminded that the work we do is only possible because of the compassion and commitment of people like you. Your support ensures that children and families facing some of life's most difficult moments have a place to turn for safety, healing and hope.

In 2025, Project Harmony continued to grow both in reach and impact. Thousands of children and families came through our doors seeking support, and our team remained steadfast in providing trauma-informed care that meets families where they are. What began three decades ago as a child abuse response center has grown into a comprehensive network of services designed to protect children, strengthen families and prevent harm before it happens.

Our commitment to children's mental health also continued to evolve. Over the past year, we took a deeper look at the needs of the youth and families we serve and the barriers that often prevent them from accessing care. As a result, we began integrating our mental health and school-based programs under one unified clinical structure: Project Harmony Clinical Services. This approach strengthens collaboration across teams, improves coordination of care and allows us to respond more effectively to the growing mental health needs we are seeing in schools and families across our community.

We also continued to expand our efforts to protect vulnerable youth through our Missing and Anti-Trafficking Youth Services. In 2025, Project Harmony worked to raise awareness and mobilize communities around the realities of child trafficking. More than 600 people attended screenings of our Missing documentary, followed by panel discussions, and our team facilitated presentations that brought professionals and partner agencies together to deepen understanding of how exploitation occurs and how communities can respond. Our team also continues to share expertise nationally, helping support anti-trafficking efforts across the nation, where professionals are implementing a collaborative, multidisciplinary model inspired by Project Harmony to better identify missing youth and coordinate services for victims.

Through our Training Institute, thousands of professionals received training on how to recognize and respond to child abuse and trauma. By equipping others with the tools to act, we are extending our mission well beyond the walls of our campus.

As we look ahead to 2026, Project Harmony will celebrate its 30th anniversary. This milestone offers an opportunity to reflect on how far we have come, from a single response center to a nationally recognized leader in child advocacy and reminds us of the important work still ahead.

Every child deserves to grow up safe, supported and surrounded by people who care. Because of you, we are moving closer to that vision every day.

With sincere gratitude,

Gene Klein, LMHP
Chief Executive Officer

AT-A-GLANCE STATS

Impact by the Numbers

Last year, Project Harmony served 8,754 children and families, each facing various challenges. Those we served were as diverse as their challenges.

More than half of these children were girls (55%), and 33% were birth to 10 years old. 50% were from Douglas County. Our collaboration with numerous professionals and agencies – law enforcement, child protective services, and medical staff – was crucial in helping us amplify our impact.

We are grateful for your support and partnership in our work. Together, we can make a difference in the lives of children and families in our community.

Employee Engagement & Culture in Action

Creating Connection, Recognition and Resilience

At Project Harmony, we know a strong, connected workforce is key to advancing our mission. Our Employee Engagement Committee, made up of team members from across the organization, helps shape a culture where employees feel valued, supported and inspired.

Throughout the year, we create intentional opportunities for connection and recognition. From all-staff celebrations to personal milestones, we honor both individual contributions and collective impact. Our efforts focus on:

- Recognition & Appreciation: Celebrating achievements through formal programs, milestone moments, and service anniversary lunches with leadership
- Connection with Leadership: Building relationships through new hire breakfasts and ongoing engagement opportunities with our executive team
- Moments of Joy & Community: Hosting events like summer food truck gatherings and initiatives such as 26 Days of Kindness
- Resilience & Well-Being: Supporting morale and emotional well-being in a field that requires compassion and strength

These efforts are more than events. They are meaningful touchpoints that build trust, strengthen relationships and foster a culture of belonging.

Leadership & Employee Development

Empowering Growth Through Clear Pathways

We are committed to helping employees grow and see a future at Project Harmony. This year, guided by feedback from our Gallup Engagement Survey, we made meaningful investments in leadership and employee development.

Employees asked for clearer pathways to grow. In response, we partnered across all levels of the organization to create structured, position-specific learning pathways for employees in their first two years.

These pathways:

- Clarify expectations and build confidence early
- Outline transparent opportunities for growth and skill development
- Equip leaders to better coach and mentor their teams
- Encourage internal mobility and career advancement

This marks a shift to a more intentional, structured approach to development aligned with both employee goals and organizational needs.

Why It Matters

Investing in our people strengthens our ability to serve children and families with consistency, compassion and excellence.

When employees understand how they can grow, they are more engaged, confident and connected to our mission which strengthens the care we provide to children and families.

Broadening Our Impact

The Project Harmony Training Institute continues to expand its reach and impact, equipping professionals and communities with the knowledge and tools needed to better support children and families.

In 2025, The Project Harmony Training Institute delivered 23,906 training completions through classroom training, webinars and self-paced courses offered through our learning management system. The team facilitated 306 training sessions, including 181 off-site classes, and partnered with 93 unique organizations to provide training for their staff and clients. Participants represented 44 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico, as well as four countries, reflecting the growing national and international reach of Project Harmony's training programs.

Hope Champions Network

Through the Hope Champions Network, Project Harmony is helping build a community where hope science is used to mitigate the long-term impact of trauma. Hope Champions are individuals who complete Project Harmony's Hope-focused courses and apply what they learn within their own families, workplaces and communities. In 2025, 4,787 individuals participated in in-person and virtual training on topics including trauma, resilience, empathic strain and building hope.

Forensic Interview Community of Practice

In addition, Project Harmony launched a year-long Forensic Interview Community of Practice, connecting 27 experienced forensic interviewers from across the country. This collaborative cohort provides a supportive space for professionals to refine their skills, discuss complex cases and learn from one another through facilitated monthly sessions focused on strengthening practice and professional growth.

Major Initiatives

A key focus in 2025 was supporting Project Harmony's Missing and Anti-Trafficking Youth Services Initiative. The Project Harmony Training Institute provided dedicated training support, including webinars, technical assistance and facilitated discussions following screenings of the Missing documentary, which engaged more than 600 participants.

Online Safety & Digital Well-being

Community education around youth and technology was another priority. National experts spoke at several events, including sessions for educators, community members and healthcare professionals. In addition, Project Harmony's team delivered Online Safety training to more than 340 participants.

Meeting Children Where They Are

Ryan's Healing Journey

When Ryan first came to Project Harmony, he was just 8 years old and carrying the effects of trauma no child should have to endure. Referred to our mental health program following sexual abuse by a family friend, Ryan struggled with persistent nightmares, intense anger, difficulty regulating emotions and aggressive behaviors toward those closest to him. Diagnosed with ADHD, traditional therapy approaches were not always effective.

For Ryan, healing did not happen while sitting quietly with a workbook. It happened through movement, play, creativity and connection.

Over the course of more than three years in therapy, his therapist tailored sessions to meet his unique needs. Whether tossing a ball in the movement room, playing therapeutic games that reinforced coping skills or engaging in activities in the expressive arts room, therapy was designed around what helped Ryan feel safe, engaged and successful. These approaches allowed him to build trust, develop emotional regulation skills and gradually process the trauma he had experienced.

An important part of Ryan's healing journey was Woody, one of Project Harmony's facility dogs. Woody provided comfort, consistency and a sense of safety throughout treatment. Together, Ryan and his therapist used Woody to explore concepts such as personal boundaries, body autonomy and safe and unsafe touch in ways that felt approachable and non-threatening.

Like many children who have experienced trauma, Ryan was not always ready to talk about what had happened. Sometimes he preferred to play rather than answer questions. Rather than viewing this as resistance, his therapist recognized it as communication. Ryan's behavior signaled that he needed more time, more control and more safety before sharing what happened to him. By honoring his pace and giving him choices throughout treatment, therapy became a place where he could begin to reclaim a sense of control that trauma had taken away.

One of the most significant milestones in trauma-focused therapy is the development of a trauma narrative. More than simply recounting painful experiences, the narrative allows children to speak their truth, recognize their strengths, identify their support systems and build resilience for the future.

With Woody by his side, Ryan gradually prepared and practiced sharing his narrative. When the time came to share with his parent, Woody remained close, resting on Ryan's lap as he spoke. The comfort and reassurance Woody provided helped Ryan navigate one of the most courageous moments of his healing journey.

After more than three years of hard work, Ryan successfully completed therapy and was discharged from services.

His story reminds us that healing is not linear, and there is no set timeline. The circumstances that bring a child to Project Harmony are never their choice. What we can offer is a safe space where children are heard, respected and empowered to take an active role in their healing. By meeting children where they are and surrounding them with the support they need, including the comforting of a facility dog, we help them move from surviving to thriving.

A Connection That Made the Difference

When 10-year-old Maya began struggling in school, her teachers noticed changes almost immediately. Once an engaged student, she had become withdrawn, frequently absent and easily overwhelmed in the classroom. Maya's family was navigating significant stress at home, and it was beginning to affect the way Maya showed up each day.

Through a referral from her school, Maya was connected to therapy through Project Harmony's Connections program. Because therapy was available right at school, Maya was able to meet regularly with a licensed therapist in a space that felt familiar and safe without her family needing to worry about transportation, scheduling or missing work.

At first, Maya spoke very little during sessions. But over time, with patience and support, she began to open up. Her therapist helped her learn ways to manage anxiety, express her emotions and rebuild a sense of confidence. Just as important, the therapist worked closely with school staff to ensure Maya felt supported throughout her day.

Within a few months, Maya's teachers noticed a change. She started participating in class again, her attendance improved and she began reconnecting with friends. Her mother shared that Maya seemed happier at home and more willing to talk, laugh and engage with her family.

Stories like Maya's are why Connections matters. By bringing therapy directly into schools, Project Harmony helps remove barriers to care and ensures children can access the support they need when and where they need it most.

Through Connections at Project Harmony, children receive the tools, encouragement and hope needed to heal, grow and succeed in school and in life.

Finding the Courage

When a 9-year-old girl arrived at Project Harmony's satellite clinic in Atlantic, she carried a burden no child should ever have to bear.

She had been brought by both of her parents, who live in separate households, after concerns surfaced that she had been sexually abused by her half-brother and two cousins.

That day, she met with one of Project Harmony's specially trained forensic interviewers. In a safe and supportive setting, she found the courage to share what had happened to her. Sitting beside her throughout the process was Warrior, one of Project Harmony's facility dogs, offering quiet comfort during both the interview and the medical exam that followed.

After the interview, a SANE-certified nurse practitioner conducted a medical examination. In addition to ensuring her health and safety, the provider offered something equally important: reassurance. The young girl was reminded that what had happened to her did not define her and that her body was healthy and she deserved to feel safe.

While she received care, both of her parents met with a Project Harmony family advocate. Navigating the realities of abuse can be overwhelming for families, and the advocate provided resources, guidance and steady support as they faced difficult decisions that would reshape their family dynamic.

Project Harmony's multidisciplinary team continued to work closely together throughout the case, ensuring the child and her family received ongoing support. When the case ultimately went to trial, both the forensic interviewer and medical provider provided expert testimony.

For this young girl, the path forward required extraordinary bravery. Despite the challenges, including disbelief from one caregiver, she chose to speak the truth in court.

Expanding Access in Southwest Iowa

In 2025, Project Harmony expanded its reach in southwest Iowa with the opening of a new satellite location in Denison, Iowa, in partnership with Crawford County Memorial Hospital. Located within the hospital's Senior Life Solutions space, the new site helps ensure that children and families in Crawford County and surrounding communities can access critical child advocacy services closer to home. This marks Project Harmony's second satellite location in Iowa, following the opening of a site in Atlantic in 2024. Together, these locations strengthen Project Harmony's ability to serve families across the 16 counties in southwest Iowa where Project Harmony provides support.

The Denison location reflects a shared commitment between Project Harmony and Crawford County Memorial Hospital to provide coordinated, community-based care for children who have experienced abuse or neglect. Through this partnership, families can access services in a safe, welcoming environment without the added burden of traveling long distances.

Project Harmony's multidisciplinary approach brings together specially trained professionals who work collaboratively to assess, investigate and respond to concerns of child abuse. By expanding into Denison, the organization is strengthening the local safety net and ensuring that more children have access to the care, protection and support they need.

This expansion represents another step forward in Project Harmony's mission to protect children, support families and work alongside community partners to help end the cycle of child abuse and neglect.

The Power of Consistent Support

For youth at high risk of trafficking or exploitation, stability and trust can be unfamiliar. Many have experienced lives filled with uncertainty, such as unpredictable caregivers, inconsistent meals or unstable places to sleep. That's why consistency is at the heart of Project Harmony's Missing and Anti-Trafficking Youth Services program.

One moment during the past year captured this impact in a powerful way.

During the holiday season, one of our specialists took a 13-year-old girl out for dinner to celebrate the progress she had made. It was a simple outing but for this young girl, it was something special. At the table were conversation starters, or questions. The young girl picked up the card and asked the question of her specialist: "What's the greatest gift you've ever received?"

The staff member shared that his son was the greatest gift in his life. Then he turned the question back to her.

Without hesitation, she replied, "Having someone who cares about me like you all do, and being part of Project Harmony."

In that simple answer was a profound truth. For a young person who had experienced instability and trauma, the greatest gift wasn't something material, it was knowing someone cared and would continue to show up.

Moments like this remind us why sustained support matters. Programs like Project Harmony's Missing and Anti-Trafficking Youth Services are not just services, they are relationships built on honesty, trust and consistency. By showing up again and again, staff help fill a void many youth have experienced for much of their lives.

Consistency allows youth to begin believing in something many have never fully known: that they matter, that someone will stand beside them and that their future can look different from their past.

Youth Fire Intervention

Local Excellence, National Recognition

The Youth Fire Intervention (YFI) Program, launched in 2022 by the Omaha Fire Department (OFD) and co-located at Project Harmony, continues to grow as an important community safety initiative aimed at reducing incidents of youth fire setting through education, intervention and family support. The program serves children and families who need guidance in addressing dangerous fire-setting behaviors, helping youth understand the risks associated with fire and make safer decisions. By combining intervention services, educational programming and connections to community resources, the program works to protect both children and the broader community.

In 2025, the program continued to mature into a nationally respected model under the leadership of Firefighter/Arson Educator (FAE) Michael Davenport. Youth involved in the program ranged in age from 5 to 16 years old, with the average participant age of 11, reflecting the critical need for early education and intervention. Notable cases have included a 3-year-old using a torch lighter, a 4-year-old twin basement fire, a 7-year-old who started a house fire and a 13-year-old runaway whose actions resulted in a house fire and multiple felony charges.

Program Highlights

- 36 Youth Fire Intervention incidents responded to in 2025
- 9 fires resulted in property damage
- Average participant age: 11
- Youngest participant: 5
- All cases are now reported to Child Protective Services (CPS) as a new standard practice
- 100% of Youth Fire Intervention classes are conducted at Project Harmony, strengthening confidentiality and improving program effectiveness
- Geographic trend analysis is used to guide targeted prevention strategies in the community

The program has received national recognition, and in 2025, Firefighter Joshua Fry presented Omaha's Youth Fire Intervention (YFI) model at the Vision 20/20 Community Risk Reduction Conference, further positioning the Omaha Fire Department as a national leader in youth fire prevention.

Additionally, FAE Davenport is collaborating with the Lincoln Fire Department to support the development of a new Youth Fire Intervention program, extending Omaha's influence beyond city boundaries and helping other communities adopt effective prevention strategies.

Together, the partnership between the Omaha Fire Department, Project Harmony and community partners continues to reduce the risks posed by youth fire setting while helping children and families make positive, life-changing choices.

Expanded through education and professional training, the YFI curriculum was delivered to:

- Omaha Police Department recruits
- Omaha Fire Department candidates
- Douglas County Attorney's Office staff
- Outside agencies through Project Harmony's online training platform

Project Harmony Leadership

Message from our Board Chairman

As we reflect on the past year at Project Harmony, one thing remains abundantly clear: the work of protecting children and strengthening families is only possible because of a community willing to stand together. Every child who finds safety, every family who receives support and every life impacted through our services is a testament to the power of compassion, collaboration and shared purpose.

Serving as Board Chair continues to be both an honor and a reminder of the extraordinary people who make this mission possible. I am continually inspired by the dedication of the Project Harmony staff, volunteers, partners, donors and advocates who show up each day committed to creating hope and healing for children in our community. Your belief in this work fuels meaningful change and helps ensure children are met with dignity, care and opportunity.

While I am proud of how far we have come, I also recognize the growing and evolving needs facing children and families today. Through expanded prevention efforts, mental health support, collaborative partnerships and the continued growth of the Anti-Trafficking Initiative, we are strengthening our ability to respond to some of the most complex challenges impacting youth and families across our region.

At the heart of this work is a simple but powerful belief: every child deserves to feel safe, valued, heard and supported. Achieving that vision requires all of us. It requires communities willing to listen, partners willing to collaborate and individuals willing to invest in a better future for children.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, thank you for walking alongside Project Harmony in this mission. Your generosity, advocacy and partnership create lasting impact far beyond what any one organization could accomplish alone. Together, we are building safer communities, empowering healing and creating brighter futures for generations to come.

HOPE STARTS WITH YOU

Help us restore hope and healing for children and families

8,754
individuals have a brighter future thanks to your contributions!

Make a donation
today!

Meet your personal financial goals while making a difference for our community.

Learn how your gift
could be matched, dollar for dollar by your employer.

Every child should have the chance to flourish in a safe, joyful and healthy environment. Our mission to protect and advocate for children would be unattainable without the invaluable support from community leaders like you.

In 2025, your contributions impacted the lives of 8,754 children and families, setting them on a course towards healing. Help us extend our impact even further in 2026.
